DR. IXBAL ALI SHAH.
Hindu professor, finds ancient manuscript, written 500 B. C. It says that Rawun, king of Ceylon, had an airplane in those days and from it dropped bombs on an enemy army.

Records of ancient India abound with stories and pictures of flying machines thousands of years ago. True? Possibly. Still, there are fairy story writers in all ages. Maybe one of them imagined the story about ancient flying airplanes. Future men may dig up Jules Verne's "Trip to the Moon" and believe it true history.

HEALTH COURSES IN THE SCHOOL

Important Matter is Taken Up In Fairmont Schools

The shocking exposure of the physical unfitness of the youth of this country was brought to the attention of the people when the examination of men for the army proved such a large percentage not in physical condition for acceptance.

This condition gave all health education a strong impulse, and Fairmont is falling into line this winter with the inauguration of a health training course in the public schools. This health training is to proceed under the direction of Miss Marion Howell, a graduate nurse and a young woman with splendid practical training for her important work in the city schools.

Miss Howell is a graduate of Worcester's college, and a graduate of the Lakeside hospital training school for nurses; from this institution she received a scholarship which gave her a year's course in public health training at the Western Reserve university. She is full of enthusiasm for her work in the schools and greatly pleased at the progressive spirit she has found in the educational personnel of Fairmont, and the hearty sympathy and assistance which she has received from the entire teaching force with whom she is to cooperate.

Miss Howell has been in the city since the opening of the schools and has been busily at work laying the foundation for her winter's program. She has visited every room in the public schools making friends with the children whom she has won at sight, and becoming acquainted with the teachers personally.

Next week her actual organization begins with the introduction of her work in what the children will know as the great Health Game. There are certain rules which must be followed by those who desire to play the game, and these must be followed strictly in future years of the game. The Health Crusaders will also be organized among the children from the third grades up to the eighth.

The parents of the city are already becoming interested in a course which will lay the foundation for health and strength in the future years of their children, and this course will receive all possible aid that can be given by those at home, in order to further the benefit of the health training received in school. Miss Howell lives her work up under three heads: that of helping to prevent the spread of communicable diseases, helping to discover and correct physical defects, and the teaching of personal and public hygiene to the children. Every possible encouragement is to be extended this feature of the public school work, and the school board confidently expects the very best of results from Miss Howell's labors in the various schools of the city.

CASE HOLDING OVER

Seems Alabama Tarheel and Edward Hate
Each Other

"I'll tell you how it happened, Judge," said Ed Moore to Mayor Conaway in police court this morning. "Yesterday evenin' I meets this girl which I knowed her befo' she come to this here state. She says as how she's cold and hungry an' I buys her something to eat and lends her my rain coat. After that I meets her later an' buys her some cider an' she gets drunk an' when I asks her for my coat, this here fellow what calls himself, The Alabama Tarheel, comes at me with an armful of rocks. I never had no knife."

During Ed's recital of his part in the affair, the Alabama Tarheel showed signs of apology and several times essayed to speak but was warned by the Mayor to wait his turn. Finally it came and the alleged bad man from Alabama began:

"J-I-Judge," he stuttered, "he d-d-dones had a knife an' I t-t-told him to s-s-s-stop," as he came at me."

"If you picked up the rocks the same way you talk," observed His Honor "it'd have taken you quite a while to accumulate an armful. But go on."

Stripped of its chopped verbiage, the gist of Willie's story—his real name is Willie Lovell—is that he was simply championing the cause of Pauline Graham, as Ed Moore was trying to carve her with a knife Pauline admitted that Ed had lent her the coat but hadn't bought her anything and that she had relinquished the garment in contravention voluntarily.

"Pauline," interrupted Ed with a pained expression, "didn't I buy you five cents worth of candy an' then some cider?"

Pauline's answer was a disadvised look. After listening to the wrangle, for about 20 minutes, Mayor Conaway decided that someone was lying and postponed further consideration of the case until four o'clock this afternoon when Patrolman Holt, who arrested the warring trio of negroes in Hull alley last night at 11:30 can appear in court and testify as to just what did take place.

Moore, who is janitor at the court house, claims that the whole thing is a frame-up—that the other negroes living in Hull alley are trying to get him into trouble for the reason that they suspect him of giving the county officers information regarding what goes on in the alley.

Early in the evening Patrolman Holt also arrested Dorr Reese on Pennsylvania avenue with two pints of whiskey in his automobile. Reese was turned over to the county authorities.

"Fatty" Far From Scene of Trouble

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—The manslaughter charge against Roscoe Arbuckle in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe after a drinking party in a hotel here a month ago, was on the calendar in the Superior court today but the defendant was several hundred miles away at his home in Los Angeles. District Attorney Brady intimated that he opposed Arbuckle's absence and probably would as continuance until next Friday to enable the motion picture comedian to come to San Francisco and appear. Federal action against Arbuckle in connection with alleged Volstead act violations are to be held up for some time, it was announced by Robert McCormack, special assistant to the attorney general of the United States.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—With the adoption of a declaration favoring the creation of a new political party of organized labor and the organized farmer, the convention of the United Mine Workers came to an end today after being in session since September 30.

In addition to its political declaration the convention asked Governor McRay, of Indiana, not to honor a requisition for the surrender of David Robb, of Terra Haute and union organizers wanted on a murder charge in West Virginia. It also elected Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas miners' union and William Mitchell, secretary of the Indiana miners as delegates to the international mining congress meeting next year in England. Indianapolis was chosen as the seat of the next convention that will convene in January, 1924.

SOME OWL THIS; GETS AUDIENCE

Has a Hard Time Holding
To Top of High
Building

A very small owl won the attention of a score or more persons this morning who stood in a line in front of Woolworth's Ten Cent Store gazing upward. The small creature had flown to the topmost front side of the Hall Block across the street, where it clung most precariously to the fresco work along the top ledge of the building. The owl roared sometime before sat on a post near the Woolworth Building but as the day grew brighter, it flew across to the Hall Block building and due to the fact that an owl cannot see very well in the daytime, it is presumed it struck against the fresco work where in some miraculous manner it got a foothold. Huddled sideways against the building, it resembled part of the decorations so strongly that the inspection the little fellow got from interested pedestrians, was most minute. In fact for the greater part of the day the owl was the cause of many craning necks and much speculation. The owl clung to this tiresome position for an hour or two and then flew from a wretchedly uncomfortable shelter quite suddenly, and managed in some way to reach the top of a ledge near where it is presumed the bird will stay until nightfall.

MINERS' MEETING CONCLUDED TODAY

Favor Creation of a New Political Party

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—With the adoption of a declaration favoring the creation of a new political party of organized labor and the organized farmer, the convention of the United Mine Workers came to an end today after being in session since September 30.

It also elected Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas miners' union and William Mitchell, secretary of the Indiana miners as delegates to the international mining congress meeting next year in England. Indianapolis was chosen as the seat of the next convention that will convene in January, 1924.

Alloy and two other Italians, Joe Augustino and Tony Vollange were jointly indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Moore. Alloy was arrested on the day after the murder, but the other two escaped and have not been captured.

The testimony of the two Jarvis girls and their mother was that they had come to Everson to live with Moore, the brother of Mrs. Mike, who had consented to act as a witness.
